

Turton Tower

Jumbles Reservoir

Last Drop Village

⑥ Pass a works bridge and weir and then turn right over the bridge near the head of Jumbles Reservoir. Across the bridge, turn left and the path will bring you to a smaller reservoir and then to a drive. Turn right as far as the bridge on the left and go over that. Now keep to the path ahead above Jumbles Reservoir and on up the drive with its avenue of trees.

⑦ Beyond the entrance to Grange Manor, go through the kissing-gate on the right, signposted Ousels Nest. (Those who have walked from Bromley Cross station join the route by turning left here. If you joined the walk here and wish to return to the station, continue along the road.) Cross the field, go under the railway bridge and follow the track uphill to the estate road and out onto Chapeltown Road. Go across the road and walk up Haydock Lane. From its top right-hand corner, your footpath leads between houses. Continue along the road ahead, turning neither to the right or left, until you can bear right at the footpath sign. The track takes you back to the Last Drop.

WALK SUMMARY

The Last Drop Village complex of hotel, restaurant and shops stands high above Bolton on the edge of the hills and makes an excellent starting point for this walk across a scenic golf course, over one bridge of towers and turrets (one of which can be climbed) and past another, through woods to the attractive village of Chapeltown. You visit two reservoirs offering extensive views and linked by a delightful wooded gorge with a rippling stream, and the country house of Turton Tower, medieval and later, is open to the public and stands in pleasant grounds. There is no difficult walking on this route.

THE WALK

① From the fountain in the Market Place at the Last Drop, walk up the drive to the right of the Last Drop Gallery. At the end of the tarmac area, turn left by the footpath sign and follow the path gently uphill and then to the left, with the golf course on your right. When you see a stile to the right, do not climb it but take the path between the stone wall and the golf course, with Winter Hill ahead. The path then passes between quarry and golf course.

④ Turn left along the village's main street, passing the cross and stocks, and then right down Embankment Road. Descend the drive to Wayoh Reservoir, cross the dam, and then turn right to arrive in Edgworth at the Black Bull.
